

A report from the Infant Music Festival, Freight House, Rochford

Thursday, 10th March 2016

Following a bright and sunny walk to the Freight House a group of thirty Year 2 children took part in the Infant Music Festival 2016 along with 3 other participating schools.

During the afternoon we were able to listen and take part in accompanying a variety of songs. This year the theme was 'Weather' and our school sang 'Jet stream' and 'Somewhere over the rainbow' up on the stage. The children were brilliant as they had to learn all the words from memory and they gave a really confident and enjoyable performance, after which the audience showed their appreciation by giving a loud round of applause.

The musical director engaged our attention by playing a beautiful 'Glissando' on her flute to which the children were instructed to stand up. She also played a tiny flute called a 'Piccolo' and we were captivated as she played Hedwig's theme from Harry Potter.

Thanks to Mrs Stanford and the many parents who walked with us, and particular thanks for assistance with a suitcase full of instruments!!!!

But final thanks to the Stars of the show ...the children.....keep on singing!
